REFORM SCHOOL EXTENDING WORK

Plans for the additional buildings at the Reform school, Wailanae, are now in the hands of A. T. Atkinson, Superintendent of Public Instruction. The buildings are a dormitory and a cottage for the superintendent of the school. Externally the dormitory is a duplicate of the one already occupied, but internally slight changes are made which the use of the first one suggested.

The Board of Education is going to buy its first cow, for the purpose of starting dairy work at the Reform school. An increase in the number of pigs kept is also to be made.

E. W. Estep, formerly a valued teacher in Hamakua, has been appointed assistant to Superintendent T. H. Gibson.

Superintendent Atkinson is confident that, when the Reform school has been fully established, the institution will be equally a credit and a benefit to the Territory. He has worked on the scheme, ever since the Legislature ratified the change from the old and deteriorated reformatory in town to an agricultural and manual training school in the country, with a conviction that it was one of the most important steps taken for years in the educational progress of the Hawaiian Islands. Of cognate importance is the transformation of the old reformatory for boys into an industrial school for girls.

NEW SISAL CO. HAS BEEN FORMED

The Hawaiian Sisal Company, Limited, has filed articles of association in the Treasurer's office. Its purposes include agricultural operations generally besides the raising and manufacture of raw sisal fiber. The capital is $100,000, in $10 shares, with the privilege of increasing it to a million. First officers are: August Dreier, president, holding 100 shares; W. H. Hoogs, vice-president, 25 shares; W. H. Pain, treasurer, 3648 shares; H. W. S. Edmunds, secretary, 3647 shares; A. W. T. Bottomley, auditor, 5 shares; these officers being the board of directors. Among the stock subscribers are W. T. Lucas, James Wakefield and Robert Catton for 25 shares each. It is said that 855 shares are applied for in California, with a total of 6000 expected from that quarter. The company will operate on Koolau lands and have its principal office in Honolulu.

THE MOSQUITO FUND.

The following list of contributors to the mosquito campaign fund is good for $55 a month, while $250 a month is the amount required: Mrs. S. N. West, C. J. Hutchins, E. D. Tenney, W. A. Bowen, G. P. Castle, Union Feed Co., Bishop & Co., C. B. Cooper, M. D., Geo. H. Robertson, E. S. Boyd, Lord & Belser, H. D. Thirkfield, F. W. Smith, A. J. Campbell, R. W. Catton, J. K. Kanihale, W. O. Bryan, P. R. Helm, J. D. Avery.

A newly arrived Westerner was confronted in a street of New York late at night by a ruffian with leveled revolver, who made the stereotyped demand: "Give me your money or I'll blow your brains out." "Blow away," said the Westerner; "you can live in New York without brains, but you can't without money."

Further information: "Now," said the teacher, "can you tell me anything about Hiawatha?" "Yes," replied little Henry; "it's the tune that made Longfellow famous."—Chicago Record-Herald.

BOOKS AND BOOK-BUYERS.

The Establishment of Conventiences Never Before Enjoyed in Honolulu.

Was it Balzac or Stevenson who said: "The book-lover and the book-worm rule the same kingdom; the former through affection, the latter through appetite;" or perhaps it was Wordsworth or Southey for really I have forgotten (?) but almost any of the many book-lovers of Honolulu will be able to place the quotation. But I am certain it was Wordsworth who wrote the exquisite verses about books being a real world, where our pastime and happiness may grow. The lines were recalled by the conveniences lately offered book-lovers and book-readers in Hawaii, by the enterprise of a local firm who have recently established a modern book-shop in Honolulu, that hitherto has existed no nearer than San Francisco, Chicago or New York.

Previously books in fine bindings have not been offered for sale in the islands, except by occasional traveling agents; and it is an agreeable surprise after many years residence to find on the shelves of the new book-shop most of the old favorites of earlier book collecting days in metropolitan cities. Here are whole rows of the English and American classics, while in the next case may be seen the volumes of a Century of French Romance, side by side with a superb edition of the Universal Anthology, near which follows the World's Great Classics. Then come Voltaire in blue leather, and forty-two volumes, together with those rarer works—Balzac, Rabelais, Boccaccio, Masuccio, La Fontaine, with the Heptameron of Marguerite de Navarre, and the Facetious Nights of Straparola.

But best of all to the reader of today, there are whole shelves of the modern authors, both in fine and in plain bindings, such as glad the heart of book-buyers: Stevenson, Barrie, Kipling, Stockton, Hopkinson Smith and a score of others, with all the old stand-bys, like Dickens, Thackeray, Dumas, Carlyle, Scott and all the noted writers of the last century. There are also old favorites, bound in limp leather, and marvelously cheap in comparison with charges in the past; these dainty books are a feature in the new store—volumes that can be carried in the pocket, or placed under the pillow after reading at night.

Besides the field of letters, there are works in all departments of science, law, and medicine—many in fine bindings, supplemented by encyclopedias in few or many volumes, and magnificent dictionaries in one volume or in ten. And there are gift books in burnt-leather bindings, so dainty that the visitor grows covetous, and turns again to the volumes of drier history and triter eloquence with a feeling of regret. The new firm will sell on installments with easy payments, or for cash with a discount; but they make a point of selling in all cases at publishers' prices, or sometimes even below list prices.

The Wm. C. Lyon Co., Ltd., are enabled to do this owing to their extensive connections at the Coast and in the East, controlling as they do all the publications of the Scribners, the Appletons and the Colonial Press of New York, the Lawyers' Cooperative Publishing Company and the Tandy Wheeler company of San Francisco. The fact that the firm is prepared to speedily secure rare and out-of-print books of any date and from any part of the world, is another feature new to Honolulu. Polite attendance and book-information can be secured at any time by calling at the store, where an examination of the stock will prove to visitors that the finest library at the present in Hawaii is actually on sale at New York prices at the corner of Fort and Hotel streets.
